What Do Books Do?

Books bring people in. A gorgeous cover and a flash of color are all you need to bring energy and design to your windows, tables, and shelves.

Books tell your story. Great retailers know how to tell a story, and books are the perfect introduction to any new theme, holiday, or initiative. They also tell a story about your brand, and let customers know what's important to you.

Books create an experience. Customers engage with books longer than they do with other products, so they create a deeper retail experience and allow people to feel connected to their purchases.

Books build community. People feel connected to books, and in turn, are more likely connect with one another. Books create an opportunity for you to build a community of cooks, crafters, and more.

Books sell themselves. They get extraordinary publicity and reviews that drive sales. At Penguin Random House, we publish books of the moment in every category and for every age. We believe we have the right book (or 20!) for every retailer and every customer.

Books sell other products. Books cross-merchandised around the store offer visual context for the products alongside them. A cookbook next to a slow cooker sells the device too, offering a clear image of how it will be used – and even answering the age-old question, “What’s for dinner?”

Books keep people coming back. A book on crafting will inspire customers to return to buy more supplies, tools, and accessories. Whether books offer instruction or inspiration, education or entertainment, they generate new ideas, delights, and hobbies.

Books make great gifts (. . . our own favorite reason). Books bring joy to any occasion and every season. With a wide range of price points and formats, books are the ideal present or the very best add-on gift.

A mouse nibbled out of the grass, and the paper boat sailed down in the shape of a leaf boat.
"Crak-crak!" He'd jumped to the ocean, too!
But before long, the frog got tired, and the paper boat sailed on alone.

"How you really like a strong boat!" and the paper boat's conversation.
"It's a highlight. Tiding along at night, but I can't go very fast," answered the highest.
"Do you have time to get to the ocean?"
"I'm taking this home to the port. You can meet if you like. Because there will have."
The paper boat pulled alongside the highest and tried to half and just like his.

And each day, Little Taco Truck would set out to find a place to park and eat his tacos on Mission Street.

Little Taco Truck's engine rumbled.
He knew he should share his street.
But what if people love falafel more than tacos? He worried.
The severely injured Miss Falafel would find a street of her own the next day.
