The domed ceiling of the lobby at National Geographic's headquarters building in Washington, D.C., re-creates the starry sky on the night that National Geographic was founded on January 27, 1888. Staff use this spot as a landmark and often say, "Let's meet 'under the stars.'"

Under the Stars books showcase characters and situations that reflect the work of renowned National Geographic scientists, photographers, and journalists, through fictional stories that are based on their adventures and discoveries.

Dear Readers,

I am very pleased to introduce our Spring 2019 list! There are so many exciting new titles on the horizon as we continue our expansion into fiction and previously unexplored corners of nonfiction. As always, National Geographic Kids Books brings the power of science, exploration, and storytelling to the printed page through engaging stories, fun facts, and awe-inspiring pictures. It's our mission to inspire every kid to embrace the adventure and wonder found in all of us.

This year ushers in the 10th anniversary of our New York Times best-selling National Geographic Kids Almanac, with more than a million copies in print. To celebrate the occasion, our blinged-out 2020 edition features a brand-new design, as well as all-new editorial content, from world events and animals to maps and games.

Our flagship fiction series, Explorer Academy, continues this season with the second book, The Falcon's Feather. Come along as Cruz and the gang head out on the open seas to continue their studies and experience adventures beyond our budding explorers' wildest dreams (including an up-close encounter with whales, vetted by veteran explorer and underwater photographer Brian Skerry!). With Nebula closing in and the second piece of the cipher still missing, this page-turner is a thrilling follow-up to the series launch. Want more? Don't miss the Explorer Academy Codebreaking Activity Adventure, which is sure to turn casual readers into determined sleuths in no time. (Pro tip: Crack the codes in this book to unlock more clues and secrets from the Explorer Academy novels!)

For our four-to-eight-year-old readers, the Little Kids First Big Book of Science offers an exciting introduction to basic concepts like magnets, weather, and physical properties. And we're thrilled to introduce a prequel to the best-selling Little Kids First Big Book series: the new Little Kids First Board Books for ages three and under. Unlike anything else on the market, both of these reference series feature big, beautiful pictures; bold text; and fact-filled callouts for an engaging reading experience.

Our award-winning nonfiction list offers a variety of titles ranging from silly to serious, fact-filled to fascinating. In April, prepare for fits of laughter with Funny Animals, our hilarious new series featuring animal memes, jokes, comics, and more. May brings sweet dreams with the National Geographic Kids Dream Journal, which includes a fascinating look at the history and science of dreaming. And finally, just in time for the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing, explore moon science, mysteries, and myths in Luna, the latest book from astronomer David Aguilar.

We hope you enjoy the spring books from National Geographic Kids! May they inspire you and your family to care about the planet and everything that's on it.

LIFE IN THE PAST

GUARDIANS OF THE TOMB

Back in 1924, some Chinese farmers were digging for water when they got a shock. Starting up from the soil was a face, eyes wide open, with features that looked almost human. But this was not a skeleton. It was one of thousands of life-size soldiers made of baked clay called terra-cotta—and they had been buried for 2,000 years.

BURIED TREASURE
 How soon row of the soldiers—each face as different as an realistic as the next—were hidden to get the size of two football fields near Xi'an, which was China's capital city for nearly 2,000 years. Archaeologists eventually found four pits, some containing statues of horse-drawn chariots, cavalry soldiers on horseback, and high-ranking officers.

BODY GUARDS
 Who could have built this huge underground army? Experts assume it was China's first emperor, Qin Shihuangdi (also the emperor Qin), the brilliant but brutal ruler who created the first unified China, was known for his big ideas and even bigger ego. It's believed that because Qin Shihuangdi had killed so many people during his reign, he may have wanted a large army to protect him from his victims' ghosts once he died. He probably had the clay soldiers created to guard his tomb, which was just one mile (1.6 km) away from where the pits were discovered.

FINAL REWARDS
 As it turned out, the emperor's living enemies took revenge—not the dead ones. In 206 B.C., a few years after Qin Shihuangdi's death, invading armies destroyed the pits, burying the warriors and cracking every figure. The pits carved in more as time went on and the soldiers were lost to the ages.

Experts have since placed a thousand soldiers back together, but some 6,000 figures are still buried. As work continues, who knows what secrets these soldiers have yet to tell!

HISTORY HAPPENS

UNDER RECONSTRUCTION

Experts have painstakingly rebuilt and restored a thousand terra-cotta warriors found in underground pits near the emperor's tomb. The complex is so vast that excavations may continue for generations.

SECRET DISCOVERIES
 While thousands of terra-cotta warriors, each with a unique face, were found.

A warrior's head poking out of the dirt still has traces of red paint. Originally all of the warriors were painted in eight colors.

Workers break dirt away from the collapsed roof that sheltered the terra-cotta warriors.

A buried terra-cotta warrior lies in its 2,000-year-old underground tomb.

WILD ADVENTURE

EXTREME SPORTS

1 CLIFF JUMPERS!
TAKE THE PLUNGE
 Canoeist's brave over leaps off the La Quebrada Cliffs in Acapulco, Mexico. The height of the jump? Same egg-fertilizing 100—four times taller than most platform diving boards.

3 CURVE APPEAL
 Cars and motorcycles drive sideways along a wall in this dizzying display in India. Thanks to curved guard rails, vehicles stay stuck to the wall as they loop around the curved course.

AWESOME EXPLORATION

5 WHEELS UP
 Back in 1911 a free rider sailed over a steep rock wall in Mount St. Helens, U.S.A. In free riding, cyclists use obstacles in nature—like rock formations and twigs—to do stunts and tricks.

6 BALANCING ACT
 No fear here! A daredevil tapers along a wire as she crosses between two cliffs in the Italian Alps. A stumble at this height would be like falling from the top of the Empire State Building.

7 THROWN FOR A LOOP
 Start cyclist Danny MacAskill seems to defy gravity by riding around a 18-foot (5.5 m) tall loop. Here he's shown in a time-lapsed photo making a full circle before riding away on his bike.

8 BIG AIR
 A snowboarder's flying high during the slopestyle event at the 2014 Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia. Slopestyle competitors race down a mountain dotted with obstacles like ramps, which allow them to catch major air.

DUHI! Don't let these tricks on you own!

The Soft and Squishy Science and Culture of 'Aww'
By Sarah Wassner Flynn

Ever wonder why some creatures just make you want to cuddle them? Join us in the science lab to ooh and aah over adorable animals and discover why CUTE is just so darn irresistible!

In this book, we'll examine what actually makes something "cute," as we look at tons of awww-dorable images to understand why babies, puppies, and other small fluffy animals with round faces and big eyes are universally adored (and why others are less so). Flynn explains what happens inside our brains when we see something cute, and why we're biologically hardwired that way. We'll also explore why some brands, products, and characters have been such sensational hits through the ages and take an up-close look at crazes today, from the indisputably cutest animals ever to Internet sensations. Let the squealing commence!

MAKE THIS!

Building, Thinking, and Tinkering Projects for the Amazing Maker in You

By Ella Schwartz

This fun and instructive book, chock-full of hands-on activities and cool experiments, is designed to inspire the next generation of engineers. It supports all kinds of kid creators: those who prefer guided instruction, those who prefer to dream up and design objects on their own, and everyone in between. With thoughtful text and bright illustrations, this book gives kids the tools and the know-how to create their own maker space by building a kaleidoscope, designing a fidget spinner, planting a rain forest, creating a musical instrument, and more. Unconventional scenarios inspired by real National Geographic explorers give kids a chance to think outside the box and apply their maker skills to real life. Chapters are divided up by scientific principle, such as simple machines, energy, and forces. In each chapter, kids can start by following step-by-step activities, or get creative by tackling an open-ended challenge. Helpful sidebars explain the science behind what's happening every step of the way.

The Wild Life of Biruté Mary Galdikas and Her Fearless Quest to Save Orangutans

By Anita Silvey

As a young scientist, Biruté Mary Galdikas had a mission: to find and study the elusive orangutans of Borneo's rain forest to help protect this amazing species. When Galdikas saw her first image of an orangutan in the wild, she was immediately captivated. She moved to Borneo at just 25 years old, where she set up a simple camp, named after her mentor, Louis Leakey, and began her search for wild orangutans. Like primatologists Jane Goodall and Dian Fossey, Galdikas was driven by incredible ambition and a fascination with apes and human origins. Her studies brought these critically endangered apes to the world stage, and they are still making an impact today.

With unparalleled storytelling, award-winning author Anita Silvey offers unique insight into Galdikas's childhood as an immigrant, her work with National Geographic, her passion for raising awareness about conservation, and her mission to secure a future for orangutans.

YOU CAN BE AN ENTOMOLOGIST!

Investigating Insects With Dr. Martins

By Dino Martins, Ph.D.

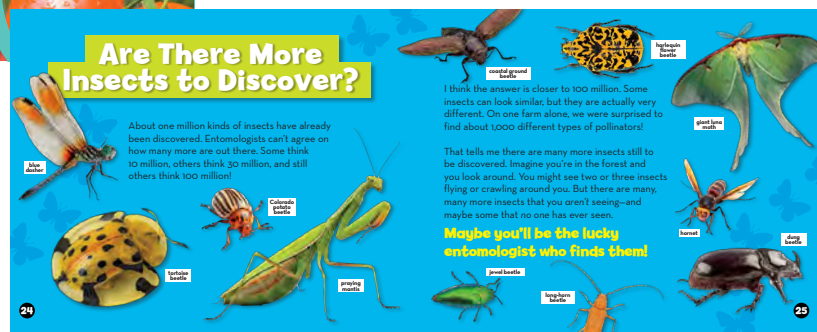

Trek into the field with insect expert and National Geographic explorer Dr. Dino Martins to study all kinds of critters that creep, crawl, and fly to learn what exactly an entomologist does.

There are more than one million different kinds of insects in the world ... and curious kids seem to have just as many questions about them! That's why this book is set up in a kid-friendly question-and-answer format paired with wonderful images. Questions cover everything from "How do insects get their names?" to "How are insects helpful?" Kids will learn how real scientists observe insects, capture them to study up close, and release them back into the wild.

This fun book is sure to inspire kids to go out and observe the creatures crawling in their own backyards.

One Girl's Story of Growing Up During the Iranian Revolution
By Nioucha Homayoonfar

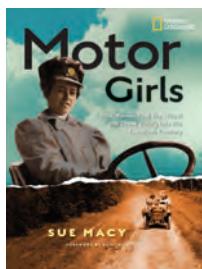

When five-year-old Nioucha Homayoonfar moves from the U.S. to Iran in 1979, its open society means a life with dancing, women's rights, and other freedoms. But soon the Iranian Revolution erupts and the rules of life in Iran change. Religion classes become mandatory. Nioucha has to cover her head and wear robes. Opinions at school are not welcome. Her cousin is captured and tortured after he is caught trying to leave the country. And yet, in the midst of so much change and challenge, Nioucha is still just a girl who wants to play with her friends, please her parents, listen to pop music, and, eventually, have a boyfriend. Will she ever get used to this new culture? Can she break the rules without consequences? This coming-of-age memoir sheds light on the timely conversation about religious, political, and social freedom, publishing in time for the 40th anniversary of the Iranian Revolution.

BROTHER, SISTER, ME AND YOU

By Mary Quattlebaum

From playing to tumbling to cuddling, this playful nonfiction picture book pairs rhythmic, rhyming text with adorable photographs as it explores sibling relationships in the animal kingdom.

Little ones will delight in the similarities that lion, turtle, and even bee siblings have with human brothers and sisters in this charming read-aloud book. It opens with 10 kinds of animal siblings and segues into young human brothers and sisters. The children reprise the animal actions, from leaping and pouncing to splashing and bouncing, and finally snuggling down to sleep. Interesting facts about each featured animal are provided for further learning.

It's the perfect gift for little kids with a new brother or sister on the way—and for animal lovers of all ages. An afterword by noted early childhood development expert Dr. Tovah P. Klein, called the "toddler whisperer" by Good Morning America, provides parent tips for nurturing sibling harmony.

LITTLE LARRY GOES TO SCHOOL

The True Story of a Timid Chimpanzee Who Learned to Reach New Heights

By Gerry Ellis with Mary Rand Hess

Little Larry is a young, orphaned chimpanzee who doesn't know much about being a chimp. He has to go to the forest school to learn what chimp life is all about. Nestled in a primate sanctuary in Cameroon, Little Larry and his group of chimp friends go to the school each day to learn how to play, communicate, and climb like chimps in the wild. The only trouble is, Little Larry doesn't want to learn how to climb. He's perfectly happy on the ground. Will the sanctuary keepers and other chimpanzees be able to teach Little Larry how to climb so he can graduate from forest school?
