

Chances are that someone you know married for money

This perfect "anti-Valentine's Day" book reveals the great divide
between love & marriage

978-1-58642-374-2 — Hardcover — $29.95 / $39.95 — On sale: January 9, 2024

Don't miss this illuminating, thought-provoking, and "engrossing account" (Stephanie Coontz, author of Marriage, A History: How Love Conquered Marriage)

This look at the uniquely American institution of marriage, from the Colonial era through the #MeToo age is perfect for fans of Rebecca Solnit and Rebecca Traister

"A fresh, engaging social history." — Kirkus Reviews

"Gold diggers, bigamists, prenups, breach of promise suits, alimony: it's all here, wrapped up in an engaging and accessible account." — Booklist

"You'll Do is an illuminating and informative read that encourages us to broaden our perspective on American marriage and the systems that support it." — BookPage

"You'll Do is a fascinating and thorough historical review of the institution of marriage." — Foreword Reviews

"Zug's wry, clear-eyed history of American marriage, in all its unromantic glory, shines a new light on an old institution. An absolute pleasure to read." — Liz Scheier, author of Never Simple

"A wonderfully fun romp through the history of why people marry." — Naomi Cahn, author of Marriage Markets

"The best books are those that prompt you to reconsider long-held assumptions about things we take for granted, and Marcia Zug's You'll Do fits that definition to a tee." — Stephen Vladeck, author of The Shadow Docket

* Confirmed reviews the week of publication in People magazine and The Wall Street Journal, with additional coverage anticipated in The Atlantic, Oprah Daily, and CBS Sunday Morning. ****

STEER
FORTH
PRESS

Steerforth Press is distributed by Penguin Random House.

Contact your PRH rep or PRH Customer Service at 1-800-733-3000 to place an order.